Walk in My Shoes — 27 inspiring stories edited by Charlotte J. DeWitt

Since I have lost much of my hearing I have a much greater fear of losing my sight as well. I know I'm not alone with this fear so I was humbled and profoundly moved when I read the book Walk in My Shoes.

This book is a collection of stories written by individuals who are deafblind due to Usher Syndrome, and also mothers who have children with Usher syndrome. This book helped me understand the different types of Usher Syndrome. However, what kept me awake reading all night was the honesty and courage of the writers as they shared their scary journey into Deaf Blindness.

For example: Stephen Ehrlich (Utah) was born deaf. His foster parents noticed vision problems and took him to eye doctors every year who failed to diagnose Ushers. One doctor wrote R.P. in his notes but did not share the diagnosis with Stephen and his parents. Stephen had to experience years of frustration and discrimination attending an oral school when he only had tunnel vision. Can you imagine? He reports kids and teachers punishing him during P.E. He couldn't see anything peripherally so playing softball as an outfielder was dangerous. Stephen did not have the opportunity to experience an appropriate school setting until he was an adult, and enrolled at the Helen Keller National Center for Deaf/Blind.

Reading the book, I found out how he stumbled upon tactile ASL. I have always admired Stephen, but reading about his journey has made me deeply respectful of his ability to survive and enjoy life, despite total deafness and blindness.

Ramona Rice (Utah) explains how her fear took over when she first learned she had Ushers Syndrome. This fear contributed to many losses in her life. She lost her career in banking, her husband and her self-respect. She describes feeling like she had fallen into a black hole. Those of us who know her now see a beautiful, successful advocate. Read the journey she went through to become who she is today.

If you want to find a new appreciation for how resilient people can be, I suggest reading this book. Profits from the sale of this book are donated to the Usher Syndrome Coalition.

Cochlear Implants 2017: Advances in Technology, Candidacy and Outcomes

Hearing Loss Association of America – Salt Lake City Chapter

Wednesday, March 29, 2017

7:00 p.m. – 9:00 p.m.

The Hearing Loss Association of America Salt Lake City Chapter (HLAA-SLC) is hosting a free educational seminar, “Cochlear Implants 2017: Advances in Technology, Candidacy and Outcomes.” The seminar will discuss how cochlear implant candidacy and outcomes have improved due to advanced technology and better surgical follow-up care.

The seminar will cover how people of all ages with a wide range of hearing loss and other medical issues are benefitting from traditional cochlear implants as well as hybrid and auditory brainstem implants. It will also discuss clinical study opportunities for seniors who have been told their hearing loss isn't low enough to qualify for Medicare coverage of cochlear implants.

Keynote speakers will include Donna Sorkin MA, executive director of the American Cochlear Implant Alliance and Collin Driscoll MD, Professor and Chair of Otolaryngology at the Mayo Clinic. Dr. Driscoll has published extensive research on implantable hearing devices and runs a surgical practice, which covers all aspects of otologic and lateral skull base surgery. Director Sorkin focuses her efforts on improving access to cochlear implants for individuals of all ages while serving as the second executive director of the Hearing Loss Association of America. For more information, contact Robin Traveller at 801-657-5752 or rtraveller@utah.gov. The presentation will be in spoken English. Real-time captioning and assistive listening system accommodations will be available at the event.
